Juarez, March 24.—Although desperate fighting was still in progress at Gomez Palacio at the gateway of Torreon at 11 o'clock last night when the last dispatches came through, Gen. Villa felt so confident of victory that he returned to the main base at Bermujillo. This was for the purpose of being able to telegraph directly to

The rebels are reported to have Torreon closely surrounded and last reports were that the whole army was confident of the early fall of the federals' stronghold. The occupation of Lerdo practically without resistance and the assumed victory at Gomez Palacio leaves only Torreon to be taken and the first important stage of the revolution will be over. The conquest of Mazatlan, Saltillo and Monterrey is taken for granted once the main federal force under Gen. Velasco at Torreon is conquered.

In official circles here although dispatches ceased, it was taken for granted that Villa would triumph at Gomez Palacio, which is only three miles from Torreon, before the day was over.

Defense a Surprise.

The defense of the city came as a surprise to the rebels, who assumed that only a nominal resistance for the purpose of inflicting such damage as might be safely administered would be made by the Huerta forces. The reinforcements reported to have been rushed into the city by Gen. Velasco were totally unexpected and when these last reports were received last night it was not known definitely on which terms the situation would settle.

though the rebels expressed perfect confidence in the outcome. Their confidence, in the opinion of local military men, was justified by the capture of the main federal fortifications on Cerro de La Pizar, a mound

The whole local population was astir early today eager for further news of battle.

Information given out last night by General Chao here and General Benavides at the head of the Zava Gossu brigade was moving against Torreón. No statement of casualties in the desperate street fighting in Gómez Palacio last night was available.

the latter city was received when a telegram from Gen. Villa was picked up here. It ordered that certain supplies be sent directly to Gomez Palacios.

CRISIS WAS REACHED IN JAPANESE AFFAIR

Entire Cabinet Resigns Owing to Failure of Passage of the Budget Requested.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Tokio, March 24.—The resignation of the Japanese cabinet today has given rise to considerable discussion in political circles in Japan.

The radicals won the disappearance of Admiral Count Gombō Yamamoto's cabinet as a blow to the system of clean government and they are fighting the influence of the conservative bureaucratic groups in behalf of what they term "a true constitutional regime."

Emperor Yoshihito today conferred with a number of the elder statesmen and with the Marquis Kimmochi Sugihara, former premier.

A statement was issued today by the government, declaring that the cabinet resigned on account of failure of the house of representatives to the house of peers to agree upon a budget.

He declared that the naval scandal in connection with the giving of illicit commission to influence the allotment of contracts had nothing to do with the break-up of the cabinet. It argued that if the naval scandal had been the cause of the cabinet's fall it would have occurred at an earlier date.

A heated debate took place in the house of peers today when Lieutenant General Viscount Sakonri Soza declared that the naval scandal had been destructive of discipline in the navy and that the Japanese blueackets regarded their superior officers with contempt owing to the revelation of corruption.

It was explained in the course of the discussion that the house of peers had reduced the appropriation for the navy to one-third of the allegations of corruptions, and second because the failure of the government to accord an equal expansion to the armaments of the navy.

All of the opposition members tribute the fall of the government to the naval scandal.

MAKES OLD PEOPLE

STRONG AND WELL

We want to get the news to all old people about the famous Olive Oil Emulsion, a remarkable new food medicine which we firmly believe is the best remedy ever made to overcome the weakening, debilitating effects of increasing old age. It helps to rebuild wasted tissues, strengthen the nerves, and give new energy and a lively feeling to the body. It contains no alcohol or dangerous drug. It may not make you feel better for a few days, but if you do not feel much better and stronger before you have taken a quarter as much as you have of other medicines that have not helped you, we will gladly give back your money. Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion contains pure Olive Oil and the Hypophosphites which, though they have long been endorsed by successful physicians, are here for the first time combined. The result is a real body, nerve and blood-building food-medicine that we believe is superior to anything else in overcoming debility, weakness and liability to disease, and to tone and strengthen the nerves and enrich the blood. You who are weak and run-down—you who are often troubled by various cold weather ailments, use Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion to get and keep well and strong. It is a sensible, pleasant-tasting aid to renewed strength, better spirits, glowing health. If it doesn't help you, come and tell us and we will give back your money without a word. That is how much faith we have in it. Sold only at the 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. $1.00.

COMPLETE CARD FOR BOXING EXHIBITION OF JANESVILLE CLUB

Four Matches Scheduled in Second Exhibition of Bower City Club at Myers on April First.

BOXING CARD.
Spike Kelly vs. Walter Bauman, ten rounds, 140 pounds.
Red Oliver vs. Hal Clark, eight rounds, 135 pounds.
Joe Lanning vs. George Temple, eight rounds, 142 pounds.
Bobby Ward vs. Young Nichols, six rounds, 125 pounds.

The second exhibition of the Bower City Athletic club, which will be given at the Myers theatre on the night of April 1, promises to be in a class by itself and fistic followers in southern Wisconsin and northern Illinois, are afforded the best bouts exhibited in this state with the exception of the recent championship mill at Milwaukee. Four matches have been scheduled and all contestants are carefully matched and three of them are between boxers of well known ability. In the main fight, Spike Kelly of Chicago, will take on Walter Bauman, the sturdy Milwaukee all around athlete, for ten rounds for the welter-weight title of the country, as Kelly is admitted to be the wearer of the crown in this division. Kelly is an old hand in the game and has kept his slate clean from any bad defeats and has battled his way to the top of the ladder over the toughest boxers the country has to offer. During the last year his record shows that he has fought and defeated numerous hopes in all sections of the country. On January first, last year, he whipped Hillard Lang, champion welterweight of Canada, and two weeks later gave a lesson in boxing to the famous Wildcat Ferns, at the same city. This bout was declared a draw, and Kelly is billed to meet Ferns again at Superior the latter part of April, if he defeats Bauman here. Not being content with this success, Kelly started to trim them all, and in April won a decision over Billy Walters at Kenosha, in a ten round quarrel, and put Tommy Sheehan under his victory in a round in a room in Superior, Wisconsin, November 24. Billy Walters tried to retrieve lost honors with Kelly again in a fifteen round tilt at St. Joseph, Mo., but Kelly won the popular decision. In December he defeated Jimmie Burns, promising 145 pound ambitious for honors, the tenth round, hooking over the slumberland punch just before the final gong. This year Kelly has licked Billy Mike, a middleweight, at Superior, February 17th, and shaded Lee Barrett at Madison.

Spike Kelly has been noted among the followers of the padded square as being a battler that will make his opponent think that he has lost, but sets a killing pace and keeps it up. His record shows that he has yet to receive that knockout that puts a borer down the list, and the best boxing match ever staged in southern Wisconsin should be the term describing the match when Wallie Bauman and him get to mixing things in the arena, April 1st.

With all his long scalp list, fans expect a great showing from Walter Bauman, who shaded Schaeffer, of Chicago, and Mike Graham, in local and Beloit bouts, for it takes a good man to get the march over the pride of Milwaukee when it comes to exchanging the wallows. Both boys in this bout are not long range, fancy step artists, but are savage rushers and fighters. This bout will be for ten rounds and for the welterweight honors.

Red Oliver, a clever lightweight, formerly of Rockford, but of late has made Beloit his stamping grounds, looks good to have an argument on his hands with Hal Clark of Milwaukee. Oliver has been boxing around southern Wisconsin for several years and has achieved considerable fame as a clever man and one with a punch. The Milwaukee pug is a noted glove-wielder himself and should set a hard pace for "Torchy."

In the third bout, Joe Lanning and George Temple, two husky welterweights, will travel for eight rounds at 142 pounds weight at three o'clock in the afternoon. Bobby Ward, the Line City "Bearcat," will try the come-back stunt against Young Nichols of Janesville for six rounds. Nichols is just breaking into the game and his worth will be demonstrated against the Beloit boy.

Heart to Heart Talks

By CHARLES N. LURIE

"FREED ON A TECHNICALITY."
When you are accused of a violation of some code of law or ethics or morals—Don't hide behind a technicality. You have a right to defend yourself, of course, and to take advantage of the safeguards which the law throws justly around the innocent. But you have no right to stretch the law until it cracks.

It is that practice which is the standing reproach of American courts and court procedure and which makes the prevailing delay of justice amount to a denial of justice.

Better to own up honestly, when you are in the wrong, than to crawl out by taking advantage of the strict letter of the law which killeth.

The former course wins forgiveness and continuance of such respect as was enjoyed before the offense. The latter brings with it the sneers that are harder to endure than open condemnation.

Too many men are walking the streets of American cities unwhipped of the justice which should have overtaken them, because they have been freed on technicalities while no doubt of their guilt remained in honest minds.

Many years ago there was in Kansas a man of honest demeanor and conduct, but of hasty temper. He was involved in a quarrel with a neighbor, and the quarrel led to the drawing of a weapon by the man of ire. He shot at his neighbor, but fortunately missed him, and he was haled to court on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

His lawyer introduced a witness who testified that the accused man aimed his pistol low, as if he wanted to hit the other man in the legs and did not intend to do him serious harm.

So the trial went along for a short time. Then the accused man arose to address the jury.

He denied his lawyer's theory, and the testimony of the witness. He was an honest man and would not take refuge behind a technicality, although an adverse outcome of the trial would mean much to him.

"I will not deceive the jury," said he. "You know that those army pistols carry up. I was calculating on that and aimed low."

It is pleasant to record that his frankness had a good effect on the jury and that he was acquitted, especially in view of the fact that the other man was not hurt by the shot.

The moral:
He would not give himself the benefit of a false statement. He was a man of unjustifiable wrath, but he was an honest man.

Putting it Up to Him.
The governor (threateningly)—"Look here, Parkin, I've got tired of seeing these figures dropping month after month, and I shall have to seriously consider taking the only steps left to me to bring about an alteration." The Manager—"Yes, sir, and from whom would your resignation take effect?"

Rubber Corks.
In making holes in rubber corks much annoyance is caused by the punch making "tapering" holes and "running to the side." A little ammonia water poured on the rubber and the boring instrument causes the hole to become of uniform size at every point and the operation is accomplished with much more ease.

DR. WILEY APPROVES NEW EUGENICS LAW; HITS ADULTERATORS

National Pure Food Expert in Interview at Madison Says Wisconsin Marriage Law is O. K.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., March 24.—"Only healthy people should be permitted to marry," declared Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, national pure food expert, who is here to testify the corn syrup cases now being heard in the federal court. I have two eugenic children, one twenty-two months old and another three weeks old. The last one has been modeled after the corn syrup cases. I have a perfect baby and the cast will be exhibited at the Panama-Pacific exposition next year. I am in favor of eugenic marriages; even where the husband is nearly seventy years old."

Dr. Wiley celebrated his sixty-seventh birthday some time ago. Asked about national pure food legislation, Dr. Wiley declared that things are "in a bad way."

Adulterators Unchecked.
"By executive usurpation and unfortunate decisions the whole army of adulterators and misbranders are making a fight against pure food laws," declared Dr. Wiley. "We who are in favor of pure food legislation can do little but watchful waiting. We find little hope that the Wilson administration will act. Nothing has been done to correct the illegal acts of his predecessors. All of the concessions made to adulterators permitting them to use benzoate of soda, sulphuric acid and other poisonous and deleterious ingredients in the illegal actions of the three secretaries together with the illegal acts of the board of food and drug inspectors remain unbroken. No one knows what stand the Wilson administration is going to take. He has done nothing to the present time to perfect the reforms along these lines that his supporters expected. It is true that the malodorous board of food and drug inspection has been abolished, but all the bad work it did remains unbroken."

"The Remsen board, which President Wilson denounced on the stump, so far as I know is still intact and people eat today deleterious substances in food, which the pure food law was enacted to exclude. Meantime those who are debasing our food are breaking down the remaining few defenses to make their victory complete."

Praises La Follette.
Dr. Wiley discussed the recent decision of the supreme court remanding the four cases on trial. He said that this action of the court has unwittingly given aid and comfort to the enemy. He praised Senator La Follette for his work in preparing amendments that will strengthen the law, but declared that their introduction will bring to Washington the largest army of lobbyists that have ever assembled at the national capitol.

"We are the friends of pure food legislation are unopposed by the progress of food dopsters," continued Dr. Wiley. "Just at the present time there is a determined attack being made to displace the four cases on trial. The milk. Last week eight eminent scientists, who ought to be ashamed of themselves, condoned the presence of cow manure in milk, unless it made the milk impure. The fact that this milk contained 48,000,000 bacilli per gram was no evidence that the milk was contaminated. In this milk were thousands of colon bacilli not to say anything about other matter."

The great high Olympic must have felt like sinking into the shades when they looked down on this spectacle. There is new enthusiasm in stirring the fires by the imps in the under world."

MAKES INVESTIGATION IN PRISON ON PER CENT OF EDUCATED CONVICTS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., March 24.—Over 90 per cent of 269 murderers committed to the state penitentiary at Waupun in recent years were sent to work before they were 15 years of age.

Of these 269 murderers of whom a special study has been made about one-third have never been to school; half reached the fourth grade and but 3.2 per cent finished high school. Alcohol was used to excess by 41.5 per cent while but 22.6 per cent were abstainers. Nearly half were under the influence of alcohol when the crime was committed and 27.3 had been arrested before for drunkenness.

These are some conclusions contained in a report of an investigation recently made by Dr. Rock Sleyster, superintendent of the Wisconsin state hospital for the criminal insane and formerly physician in charge of the Wisconsin state prison hospital. Dr. Sleyster's investigation is one of the most complete ever conducted in the United States. The special study of 269 murderers who were sent to the institution at Waupun.

BRYAN STILL AFTER THE NIMBLE PENNIES

By Winfield Jones.

Washington, D. C., March 24.—Secretary of State Bryan has been detected in another scheme to "work his job" for all it is worth in cold, hard dollars.

Not content with using his official position to "boost" his Chautauqua lecture graft, while drawing a salary of $12,000 annually from the people as secretary of state, Mr. Bryan is now extending the prestige of his office to his private journalistic enterprises, and attempting to coin the advantages that go with high office into subscription for his Commoner.

Universal condemnation is heard in Washington from democrats and republicans alike at Bryan's latest money-making graft. The Commoner, owned solely by Mr. Bryan, a newspaper without either information or literary merit, a publication which exists to air the personal views and promote the theories and schemes of the secretary of state, is now being used in the questionable practice of promoting the cause of democrats at the coming elections and the subscription list of the publication at the same time.

In a recent issue of the Commoner, two pledges appear which call for the "good democrats" to help elect a democratic congress in 1914. One of the pledges reads as follows:

"Publishers' Commoner: Believing that the way to endorse President Wilson's administration is to elect a democratic congress in 1914, and believing that the Commoner, placed in the hands of worthy democrats and independent voters will materially assist in the election of a democratic congress as an approval of the administration of President Wilson, I request that you send me the subscription cards indicated below, and I pledge myself to use my utmost endeavor to sell the cards and will remit for them at the congressional campaign special rate of sixty cents each."

As a reward for answering this appeal with cash, the names of the "friends" are published each month in the Commoner with the number of subscription cards each has ordered written therein.

Reader, can you beat this? Never in the history of the republic has there been a cabinet official who has so unobscuringly used the prestige of his office to chase the nimble dollars. The truth is Mr. Bryan is simply "money mad." He is obsessed with a mania to get money. "As a man's heart is so his lips speak." Our noble secretary of state is always talking about money, always saying something about "fortunes," always pursuing the dollar with frantic haste and unseemly desire. In his mad scramble after the dollars Mr. Bryan presents a pitiable sight.

Some of the Washington wits, observing the secretary of state's money obsession, are suggesting that President Wilson "swap" Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo into Bryan's place and make Bryan secretary of the treasury. In that position the Nebraska could spend some of his time in gloating contemplation over the millions of gold hoarded in the treasury vaults. This might cure him of his "money-madness."

His Kind Heart.

Master of the House, sternly—"You told my tailor when he came to collect his bill yesterday that I owed you six months' wages. How came you to be so indiscreet?" The Servant—"I meant no harm, sir—I only wanted to console him a bit, sir, 'e seemed that downhearted, sir."

TAKE SODA IF FOOD SOURS IN ACID STOMACH

A well-known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion is nearly always due to acidity of the stomach—and not, as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices. He states that an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation, then our meals sour like garbage in a can, forming acid fluids and gases which inflame the stomach like a toy balloon. We then get that heavy, lumpy feeling in the chest, we eructate sour foods, belch gas or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash, or nausea.

He tells us to get a package of 10 grain Sodagen tablets from any pharmacy and swallow one tablet anytime followed by a tumbler of water which instantly neutralizes these acids stops food fermentation, absorbs the gases and sweetens the entire digestive system.

This suggestion should prove valuable to stomach sufferers here, ways can trace their indigestion to acidity. A local druggist is the authority that these tablets are entirely harmless, being composed of Soda, Magnesia and Calcium Carbonate U. S. P.

WAR! WAR! EVERYWHERE!

Mexico in the throes of a civil strife. Ireland divided on the question of home rule; armed troops assembling to force the mandate down the throats of the Ulster men. Unrest in China, and now comes the revolt in Epirus, and according to an English exchange Europe is once more placed in a difficult position by this uprising of the Epirote Greeks, who decline to abide by the decision which proposes to allocate them to the new kingdom of Albania. We are told that they have proclaimed their autonomy and that they are prepared to resist by arms any attempt to subject them to the sovereignty of the Prince of Wied. Moreover, they are fortified by the sympathy of their brother Greeks in the south, who are assisting them with volunteers, money, and munitions of war. Sympathy will, no doubt, also come to them from other parts of the world where the ties of kinship are less felt, for, although the doctrine of nationalities has become less fashionable than it was half a century ago, no fair-minded person likes to see the creation of new racial bondages anywhere. Unhappily, this is not the plan on which the new Near East is being constructed. If the cry of the Epirotes is to be listened to it is not easy to see how the still more bitter cries of the conquered and oppressed races in New Servia, New Bulgaria, New Rumania, and even New Greece itself, can be disregarded. If, however, it were only a logical dilemma which faced the Powers the problem would not be very embarrassing. The real difficulty is more serious. The Epirotes must be made to respect the will of Europe, not so much because Europe—or rather, the larger part of her—is very anxious to make them Albanians, but because Austria and Italy desire it, and are quite prepared to use force to bring it about. As, however, an Austro-Italian intervention would be an exceedingly dangerous enterprise for the whole of Europe the Powers will have to act themselves. It will not be a very agreeable or creditable thing to do, and it may even prove costly.

HOW THEY VIEW US.

England's attitude on the question of the Mexican policy of President Wilson is most interesting. They are evidently somewhat amused at the "watching and waiting" policy of the administration, but still maintain a deep silence on the whole question. The London Graphic says in a recent issue: "A telegram from Washington informs us that the cabinet, having reconsidered the situation in Mexico, unanimously resolved at its meeting on Saturday that the time was 'not ripe' for a change in the policy it has hitherto pursued in regard to the neighbouring Latin republic. 'Not ripe' is a somewhat enigmatic expression. It expresses a wholesome and hopeful doubt as to the practical wisdom of the present American policy, though its immediate effect would seem to be to assure ruffians of the type of Pancho Villa of the indulgence, if not the protection, of the United States. We have no wish to interfere in any way with President Wilson's discretion in this matter. We recognize to the full the high motives of his policy, and even if it were not so distinguished it would be clearly improper of us, or of any foreigners, to dispute the sovereign right of any state to pursue the policies which best commend themselves to its judgment and interests. But there is one limitation to which the independent activities of all sovereign states must accommodate themselves. However lofty their motives, they may not be prosecuted to the injury of other states and their nationals, and if that is their result the states so affected must be at liberty to protect themselves. We trust this consequence has been duly considered by the Washington cabinet."

TOO SHORT A TIME.

Consensus of opinion is that the proposed campaign for and against license is of too short a period to be really effective and that a negative result at this time, even a victory for no license by a small majority, would be disastrous to the cause. To be successful, public sentiment must be aroused and this can not be done in ten days, consequently it is most unfortunate to disturb local conditions by raising this question now. That prohibition will come in time there is no question—a doubt. Public sentiment tends toward this end. It would not be surprising to see it become a national issue and not confined to cities, counties or states. When it does it will be fought out with public sentiment thoroughly aroused and the result will unquestionably be in favor of prohibition. The present local campaign arguments for future local political disturbances, the effects of which are most lasting on the city. There is no question that the gentlemen who are urging the present step are most in earnest in their efforts, but it is probable they do not fully understand what the results will be from an ill-advised, hurried campaign on this important question. They meant no reflection upon the present city administration, upon their methods of handling civic matters, but were carried away by the great idea of prohibition.

WORTH REPEATING.

Are you living up to these five rules of health? (1) Keep fresh air circulating in your sleeping room? (2) Exercise regularly every day—walking whenever you can. (3) Eat wholesome, plain food and avoid alcohol. (4) Don't grind too long on one task—rest by changing work and interests. (5) Laugh at small troubles and wait till the big ones come before worrying over them. The doctor who prescribed these rules admitted that if they were followed faithfully by the American people he would soon be put out of business. They are not hard to follow. Not one costs an extra penny.

All is quiet along the Rio Grande except now and then a stray American or so is shot by a Mexican living in the thicket. Not an officer lost and Wilson and Bryan are still "watching and waiting" while the rebels and federals shoot down unarmed citizens just across the border. Here is a jingo idea for you?

Fond du Lac voted favorably on the question of adopting the commission form of government with a handsome majority of six hundred on the right side of the ledger. The example set by Janesville and the results obtained are having their effect throughout the state.

An organization of a municipal council by the members of the various club organizations of the city should be productive of good results and the outcome will be watched with interest.

If nothing else surprising happens today the activity of the women in seeking a voice in school matters by the selection of school commissioners means something.

For a primary day Janesville is most quiet. However, under it all there is an activity that betokens stirring times during the next two weeks at least.

On the Spur of the Moment

Cutterin'. I love to take the old gray mare and zip across the snow. I love to see her light right out as tight as she can go. When I kin take the milliner, I think it's simply grand. For I'm an expert driver and kin drive with one hand. I don't care for the catmole, though some folks think it's neat. For then a feller's got to drive with both his hands and feet.

I love to hear the sleighbells ring and hear the runners squeak. The fine crisp air, it makes a man ambitious, so to speak. I love to see the frost and snow hanging on the trees.

And feel the tang of winter in the keen and biting breeze. The mercury can't go too low for cutterin', you see. For then the village milliner, she cuddles up to me.

The feathers in her bunnet, gosh, they brush agin' my nose. It is enough to make a man git reck. It is less and propose. She always flutters me a lot when I'm out in my sleigh. But when I'm just a walkin' round, she looks the other way. I guess I'll never marry her. There'll be no weddin' chimes, Bekuz, you see, it's just like this: She's turned me down five times.

Street Car Etiquette. When the tall angular lady hanging onto a strap persists in keeping her elbow in your eye, remember that under all circumstances you are a gentleman. When you are hanging onto the back end of the car with both hands and the conductor comes around and asks your fare, don't try to say anything satirical or humorous. Have your nickel ready in your teeth. When the conductor declines to accept a beer check or a nickel-in-the-slot slug for the fare don't call him names. There are one or two kinds of money that a conductor cannot take. If you are an old gentleman and very tired, and a fresh young athletic girl boards the car, get up and give her your seat, for if you don't she is apt to talk about you. Women should fill all of the smokers' seats first. That is a sort of unwritten law which should never be violated. When three or four of your women friends board the car and you have only ten cents, stare after they have paid their fares and then recognize them. When you are in a crowd waiting at a corner always try to be the first one on the car. When everybody does this it makes it pleasant for all hands, especially the cripples and the feeble.

The Veteran. There's corned beef and cabbage, an old standby, sure; There's faithful old pork and beans, bound to endure, There's hash and boiled taters which cling to us still, And boiled beef and horseradish yet one the bill; But there's one old veteran we can't forget; It is the best sticker that we've ever met. When all else is lost he will still be our boon. We take off our hats to the boarding house prunee.

Uncle Abner. I never yet see a blacksmith who could play on the mandolin with a darn. And Peters is too light for heavy work, so his wife takes in boarders by the day or week. The feller who would, rather be insulted than not noticed at all generally manages to land somewhere, even if it only in jail. Hank Purdy says, by gravy, if there is anything he loves better than beatin' carpets he don't know what it is, unless it is puttin' up stovepipes. It is no disgrace to be called conceited. The feller that ain't conceited at all is doing chambermaid work in livery stables or raisin' freight on some steamboat dock.

Superlative Caution. Some men are so careful that it is comparatively safe even to go out in canoes with them.

NEW MEMBER OF THE COMMERCE BOARD

Henry Clay Hall.

Henry Clay Hall, "the most useful citizen" of Colorado Springs, Colo., has just been named by President Wilson to fill one of the vacancies on the interstate commerce commission. Mr. Hall is a member of the Colorado bar and has been a resident of Colorado Springs since 1892.

GOES TO PARAGUAY TO REPRESENT U. S.

Daniel F. Mooney.

Daniel F. Mooney of St. Marys, Ohio, is the newly appointed United States minister to Paraguay, and is the first resident diplomatic representative accredited to that country since 1870, when the diplomatic posts of Paraguay and Uruguay were combined. Mr. Mooney is a lawyer and a former state senator of Ohio and is forty-nine years old. His new job pays $10,000 a year.

RICH MAN CHARGED WITH WHITE SLAVERY

J. Parker Whitney, wealthy ranch owner prominent for many years in San Francisco society and one of the oldest families in California, has been indicted by the federal grand jury in San Francisco for violation of the Mann white slave act. The indictment was voted upon the complaint of Miss Genevieve Hanan of New York city, who charged that she traveled over the country with Whitney for several months as his wife.

---And the Worst is Yet to Come

Today's Evansville News

Evansville, March 24.—Mrs. Ida Robinson Hamilton was born July 2, 1830, at Shople, Wis., being one of a family of three girls and one son. Her sisters having died several years ago, she is survived by one brother, at Whitewater, and three nephews. About fifty years ago, when she was but a girl, the family moved to Janesville. On July 1st, 1897, she was united in marriage to Henry Hamilton of this city, who survives her. Immediately following her marriage she joined the Y. M. C. and has been a very faithful worker and member. Seven years ago she was stricken with paralysis and for about three and one-half years had neither walked nor talked, bearing her infirmities with patience and fortitude seldom met with. She was a church member and leaves beside her husband, a large circle of loving friends. Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon from the Baptist church, interment being made at two o'clock.

Thomas Bryan was born in Ireland, being 54 years of age last September, and died Sunday evening at the home of his son Robert Bryan. In 1856 the family came to America, settling in New York, where they lived until 1867. In 1875 he was united in marriage to Miss Letitia Stanton at Carleton, New York. When first coming to Wisconsin the family resided at Footville, Wis., coming to Janesville in 1887, since which time they have made it their home. He leaves five daughters, Miss Jennie and Mrs. Will Miles of this city; Mrs. Elsie Townsend of Westington Springs, South Dakota; Mrs. B. S. Dicks of Winfield, Montana; Mrs. E. Bennett of Charleston, Wash.; and two sons, Robert of this city and B. T. Bryan of Grand Junction, Colorado. Funeral services will be held Friday at two o'clock from the home, interment being made here.

Miss Grace Crosby spent Saturday and Sunday in Milwaukee. Bert Baker was a Janesville visitor Sunday. Mrs. T. Lee is on the sick list. Glenn Crosby was a Janesville visitor Sunday. Mrs. Floyd Main is on the sick list. Mrs. E. M. Stebbins of Madison, visited local relatives over Sunday. Charles Miles was a Janesville visitor Sunday. Mrs. Floyd Ballard is on the sick list. Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Libby were Janesville visitors Sunday. Mrs. Ira Dennis was a Janesville visitor Sunday. Mike Gull and Hugh Hyne motored to Janesville Sunday. Mrs. Jennie Wilder of Madison spent the week end with local friends. Mr. and Mrs. Lev France entertained at dinner Sunday Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. John Scheible. Mrs. W. Williams from Michigan, is visiting her sister, Mrs. W. Carpenter. Mr. and Mrs. McMullen of Madison spent the week end with local relatives. Will Griffith was a Janesville visitor Sunday. Mrs. Robert Hubbard and son, are spending today and tomorrow with Mrs. Delbert Smith of Brooklyn. Clement Evans of Madison, was a visitor here yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hubbard entertained Mr. and Mrs. Robert Spencer and family Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Locke Pierce and family are spending a few days in Breddhead.

No Need to Watch Horsediehs.

The cultivation of horsediehs is a thriving industry, a writer in the Country Gentleman says, and he describes a three-acre farm devoted to this industry which keeps two men busy, one of them making good money out of his minature farm. One advantage of this crop is thus described: "The horsediehs farmer can well lie back and rest in easy security, for he has a crop that only insects with suicidal motives attack."

GIRLS! HAVE BEAUTIFUL, CHARMING HAIR AND NO DANDRUFF—25 CENT DANDERINE

Try This! Doubles beauty of hair in few moments, and stops it falling out—Grows Hair.

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a "Danderine" hair cleanse." Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, of dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty soft hair and lots of it surely get a 25 cent bottle of Danderine from any drug store, or toilet counter, and just try it.

Absinthe.
The principal poison in absinthe is a vegetable substance known as thyron. It is found in wormwood, which is used in making absinthe. France is the largest consumer of absinthe, taking more than all the rest of Europe. The consumption has been steadily increasing, so that in 1911 over 1,000,000 gallons of absinthe were used in France.

Very Hard Ships.
The class in history was wrestling with the terrible experiences of the continental army at Valley Forge when the teacher asked one to describe the hardships of the patriot army. A small girl finally volunteered an answer, brief and comprehensive. "The hardships at Valley Forge were very hard ships; they were the hardest ships in all the world."

One Improvement.
"My dear," said Mrs. Newlywed, her face flushed with the excitement of her afternoon in the kitchen, "I want you to be perfectly frank with me now; what would you suggest to improve those doughnuts I made today?" "Well," replied Mr. Newlywed, lifting one with a slight effort, "I think it might be better if you made the hole bigger."

ELECTION NOTICE

OFFICE OF COUNTY CLERK, March 24, 1914.

To the Electors of Rock County:

Notice is hereby given that a judicial and county school board of education election is to be held in the several towns, wards and election precincts in the County of Rock, on the 7th day of April, 1914, at which the officers named below are to be chosen. The name of the candidate for each office to be voted for, whose nominations have been certified to this office, are given opposite the title of the office and under the appropriate designation, each in its proper column.

INFORMATION TO VOTERS

The following instructions are given for the information and guidance of voters: A voter upon entering the polling place, and giving his name and residence, will receive a ballot from the ballot clerk, which must have endorsed thereon the name or initials of both ballot clerks, and no other ballot can be used. Upon receiving his ballot, the voter must retire alone to a booth or compartment, and prepare the same for voting. A ballot clerk may inform the voter as to the proper manner of marking a ballot, but he must not advise or indicate in any manner whom to vote for. If a voter wishes to vote for some of the candidates of different political parties, he should make a cross mark under the name of each candidate he desires to vote for, or at any place within the space in which the name is printed. If he wishes to vote for a person for a certain office, whose name is not on the ballot, he must write the name in the blank space under the printed name of the candidate for the office. The ballot should not be marked in any other manner.

If the ballot be spoiled it must be returned to the ballot clerk, who must issue another in its stead, but not more than three in all to any one voter. Five minutes' time is allowed in booth to mark ballot. Unofficial ballots or memoranda to assist the voter in marking his ballot can be taken into the booth and may be used to copy from. The ballot must not be shown so that any person can see how it has been marked by the voter. After it is marked it should be folded so that the inside cannot be seen, but so that the printed endorsements and signatures of the ballot clerks on the outside may be seen. Then the voter should pass out of the booth, or compartment, give his name to the inspector in charge of the ballot box and his ballot to be placed in the box and pass out of the voting place. A voter who declares to the presiding officer that he is unable to read, or that by reason of physical disability he is unable to mark his ballot, can have assistance of one or two election officers in marking the same, to be chosen by the voter, and if he declares that he is totally blind he may be assisted by any person chosen by him from among the legal voters of the county. The presiding officer may administer an oath, in his discretion, as to such person's disability. The party designations and candidates for the different offices are, for example, as follows:

CHAPTER I.

The Crash.
"Failed!" ejaculated John Vallant blankly, and the hat he held dropped to the claret-colored rug like a huge white splotch of sudden fright. "The Corporation—failed!"

The young man was the glass of fashion, from the silken ribbon on the spotless Panama to his pearl-gray gaiters, and well favored—a lithe stalwart figure, with wide-set hazel eyes and strong brown hair waving back from a candid forehead.

Never had his innocuous and but-terfly existence known a surprise more startling. He had swung into the room with all the nonchalant habits, the ingrained certitude of the man born with achievement ready-made in his hands. And a single curt statement—like the ruthless blades of a pair of shears—had snipped across the one splendid scarlet thread in the wool that constituted life as he knew it. He had knotted his lavender scarf that morning a vice-president of the Vallant Corporation—one of the great, est and most successful of modern-day organizations; he sat now in the fading afternoon trying to realize that the huge fabric, without warning, had toppled to its fall.

How solid and changeless it had always seemed—that great business fabric woven by the father he could so dimly remember! His own invested fortune had been derived from the great corporation the elder Vallant had founded and controlled until his death. With almost unprecedented earnings, it had stood as a very Gibraltar of finance, a type and sign of brilliant organization. Now, on the heels of a trust's dissolution which would be a nine-days' wonder, the vast structure had crumbled up like a card-board. The rains had descended and the floods had come, and it had fallen!

The man at the desk had wheeled in his revolving chair and was looking at the crumpled back blotting the daylight, with a smile that was little short of a covert sneer. He was one of the local managers of the corporation whose ruin was to be that day's sensation, a colorless man who had acquired middle age with his first long trousers and had been dedicated to the commercial treadmill before he had bought a safety-razor. He despised all loiterers along the primrose paths, and John Vallant was but a decorative figurehead.

Vallant started as the other spoke at his elbow. He had come to the window and was looking down at the pavement. "How quickly some news spreads!"

For the first time the young man noted that the street below was filling with a desultory crowd. He distinguished a knot of Italian laborers, talking with excited gesticulations—a smudged plasterer, tools in hand—clerks, some hatless and with thin alpaca coats—all peering at the voiceless front of the great building, and all, he imagined, with a thriving fear in their faces. As he watched, a woman, coarsely dressed, ran across the street, her handkerchief pressed to her eyes.

"The notice has gone up on the door," said the manager. "I sent word to the police. Crowds are ugly sometimes."

Vallant drew a sudden sharp breath. The corporation down in the mire, with crowds at its doors ready to clamor for money entrusted to it; the aggregate savings of widow and orphan, the piteous hoarded sums earned by labor over which pinched sickly faces had burned the midnight oil!

The older man had turned back to the desk to draw a narrow typewritten slip of paper from a pigeonhole. "Here," he said, "is a list of the bonds of the subsidiary companies recorded in your name. These are all, of course, engulfed in the larger failure. You have, however, your private fortune. If you take my advice, by the way," he added significantly, "you'll make sure of keeping that."

"What do you mean?" John Vallant faced him quickly. The other laughed shortly. "A word to the wise," he quoted. "It's very good living abroad. There's a boat leaving tomorrow."

A dull red sprang into the younger face. "You mean—"

"Look at that crowd down there—you can hear them now. There'll be a legislative investigation, of course. And the devil'll get the hindmost!" He struck the desk-top with his hand. "Have you ever seen the bills for this furniture? Do you know what that rug under your feet cost? Twelve thousand—it's an old Persian. What do you suppose the papers will do to that? Do you think such things will seem amusing to that rabble down there?" His hand swept toward the window. "It's been going on for too many years, I tell you! And now some one'll pay the piper. The lightning won't strike me—I'm not tall enough. You're a vice-president."

"Do you imagine that I knew these things—that I have been a party to what you seem to believe has been a deliberate wrecking?" Vallant towered over him, his breath coming fast, his hands clenched hard.

"You?" The manager laughed again.

Downfall Sure to Come.
As soon as a man begins to think he knows a woman thoroughly something crops out in her personality that entirely upsets his calculations.

—an unpleasant laugh that scraped the other's quivering nerves like hot sandpaper. "Oh, lord no! How should you? You've been too busy playing polo and winning bridge prizes. How many board meetings have you attended this year? Your vote is prized as regular as clockwork. But you're supposed to know. The people down there in the street won't ask questions about patent-leather pumps and ponies; they'll want to hear about such things as rotten irrigation loans in the Stony-River Valley—to market an alkali desert that is the personal property of the president of this corporation."

Vallant turned a blank white face. "Sedgwick?"

"Yes. You know his principle: 'It's all right to be honest, if you're not too damn honest.' He owns the Stony-River Valley bag and baggage. It was a big gamble and he lost."

Vallant was staring at the other with a strange look. Emotions to which in all his self-indulgent life he had been a stranger were running through his mind, and out of his eyes came a look of a man who is doubly blind. "A poor pawn, a catpaw raking the chestnuts for unscrupulous men whose ignominy he was now called on, perforce, to share! In his pitiful egotism he had consented to be a figurehead, and he had been made a fool. A red rage surged over him. No one had ever seen on John Vallant's face such a look as grew on it now."

He turned and without a word opened the door. The older man took a step toward him—he had a sense of dangerous electric forces in the air—but the door closed sharply in his face. He smiled grimly. "Not crooked," he said to himself, "merely callow. A well-meaning, manipulated young fool wholly surrounded by men who knew what they wanted!" He shrugged his shoulders and went back to his chair.

Vallant plunged down in the elevator to the street. He pushed past the guarded door, and, threading the crowd, made toward the curb, where his bulldog, with a bark of delight, leaped upon the seat of a burnished car, rumbling and vibrating with pent-up power. There were these in the sullen anxious crowd who knew whose was that throbbing metal miracle, the chauffeur spick and span from shining cap-visor to polished brown puttees, and recognized the white face that went past, pelted it with muttered sneers. But he scarcely saw or heard them, as he stepped into the seat, took the wheel from the chauffeur's hand and threw on the gear.

He drove mechanically past a hundred familiar things and places, but he saw nothing, till the massive marble fronts of the upper park side ceased their mad dance as the car halted before a tall, iron-grilled doorway with wide, glistening steps, between windows strangely shuttered and dark.

He sprang out and touched the bell. The heavy oak parted slowly; the confidential secretary of the man he had come to face stood in the gloomy doorway.

"I want to see Mr. Sedgwick." "You can't see him, Mr. Vallant." "But I will!" Sharp passion leaped into the young voice. "He must speak to me."

The man in the doorway shook his head. "He won't speak to anybody any more," he said. "Mr. Sedgwick shot himself two hours ago."

CHAPTER II.

Vanity Vallant.

"The witness is excused." In the ripple that stirred across the court room at the examiner's abrupt conclusion, John Vallant, who had withstood that pitiless hail of questions, rose, bowed to him and slowly crossed the cleared space to his counsel. The chairman looked severely over his eye-glasses, with his gavel lifted, and a statuesque girl, in the rear of the room, laid her delicately gloved hand on a companion's and smiled slowly without withdrawing her gaze, and with the faintest tint of color in her face.

Katharine Fargo neither smiled nor flushed readily. Her smile was an index of her whole personality, languid, symmetrical, exquisitely perfect. The little group with whom she sat looked somewhat out of place in that mixed assemblage. Smartly groomed and patently members of a set to whom John Vallant was a familiar, they had had only friendly nods and smiles for the young man at whom so many there had gazed with jaundiced eyes.

To the general public which read its daily newspaper perhaps none of the gilded set was better known than "Vanity Vallant." The new Panhard he drove was the smartest car on the avenue, and the collar on the white bulldog that pranced or dozed on its leather seat sported a diamond buckle. To the spacewriters of the social columns, he had been a perennial inspiration. The patterns of his waistcoats, and the splendors of his latest bachelors' dinner at Sherry's—with such items the public had been kept sufficiently familiar. To it, he stood a perfect symbol of the elder ease and insolent display of inherited wealth. And the great majority of those who had found place in that roomy chambers to listen to the ugly tale of squandered millions, looked to him with a resentment that was sharpened by his apparent nonchalance.

Long before the closing session it had been clear that, as far as indictments were concerned, the investigation would be barren of result. Of individual criminality, flight and suicide had been confession, but more sweeping charges could not be brought home. The gilded fool had not brought himself into the embarrassing purview of the law.

The jostling crowd flocked out into the square, among them a fresh-faced girl on the arm of a gray-bearded man in black frock coat and picturesque broad-brimmed felt hat. She turned her eyes to his.

"So that," she said, "is John Vallant! I almost rather have missed Niagara Falls. I must write Shirley Dandridge about it. I'm so sorry I lost that picture of him that I cut out of the paper."

"I reckon he's not such a bad lot," said her uncle. He hailed a cab. "Grand Central Station," he directed, with a glance at his watch, "and be quick about it. We've just time to make our train."

Some hours later, in an inner office of a downtown sky-scraper, the newly-appointed receiver of the Vallant Corporation, a heavy, thick-set man with narrow eyes, sat beside a table on which lay a small black satchel with a padlock on its handle, whose contents—several bundles of crisp papers—he had been turning over in his heavy hands with a look of incredulous amazement. A sheet containing a mass of figures and memoranda lay among them.

The shock was still on his face when a knock came at the door, and a man entered. The newcomer was gray-haired, slightly stooped and lean-jawed, with a humorous expression on his lips. He glanced in surprise at the littered table.

"Fargo," said the man at the desk, "do you notice anything queer about me?" His friend grinned. "No, Buck," he said judicially, "unless it's that necktie. It would stop a Dutch clock."

"Hang the haberdashery! Read this—from young Vallant." He passed over a letter.

Fargo read. He looked up. "Securities aggregating three millions!" he said in a hushed voice. "Why, unless I've been misinformed, that represents practically all his private fortune."

The other nodded. "Turned over to the corporation with his resignation as a vice-president, and without a blessed string tied to 'em!—What do you think of that?"

"Think it's the most absurdly idiotic thing I ever met. Two weeks ago, before the investigation . . . but now, when it's perfectly certain they can bring nothing home to him!" He paused. "Of course I suppose, it'll save the corporation, eh? But it may be ten years before its securities pay dividends. And this is real money. Where the devil does he come in meanwhile?"

The receiver pursed his lips. "I knew his father," he said. "He had the same crazy quixotic streak." He gathered the scattered documents and locked them carefully with the satchel in a safe. "Spectacular young ass!" he said explosively. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

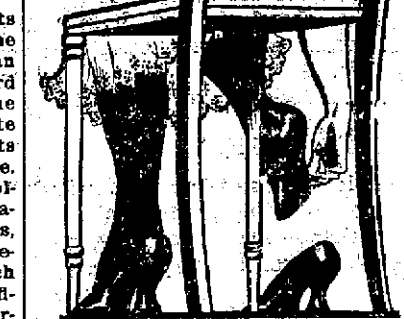

Some wives are reconciled and others read love stories. Every time I read where some woman gave a short talk I wonder how she stopped.

MME. CAILLAUX IS RECEIVING SPECIAL FAVORS IN ST. LAZARE PRISON, CHARGE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Paris, France, March 24.—Fifteen ring leaders among the women prisoners in the St. Lazare penitentiary who protested against special privileges being accorded to Madame Caillaux, were placed in isolation cells today as a punishment.

Madame Caillaux, in a condition of extreme fatigue, today called impatiently for her husband, former minister of finance. When he arrived at the jail a long conference ensued. The sharp watchfulness of the prison wardens and the attendant nuns, which was at first called forth by rumors of the prisoner's intention to commit suicide, has now relaxed.

Mme. Caillaux gives no indication of being morbid or depressed. She now has three cells, one of them serving as a bedroom, another as a dining room and a third as a workroom. All open in the same corridor which is enclosed by a finely meshed wire netting.

The madame's friends and acquaintances, having recovered from the shock caused by her act, are now showing their interest in her fate, and hundreds of them have written to her or left cards at the gates of the prison. It is declared by friends of the slain editor that Mme. Caillaux is permitted to ignore rules that others are forced to observe. It is not denied that a special mass was held for her in the jail chapel.

MOTHER OF SCHOOL GIRL

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Daughter's Health.

Plover, Iowa.—"From a small child my 13 year old daughter had female weakness. I spoke to three doctors about it and they did not help her any. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had been of great benefit to me, so I decided to have her give it a trial. She has taken five bottles of the Vegetable Compound according to directions on the bottle and she is cured of this trouble. She will run down when she started taking the Compound and her periods did not come right. She was so poorly and weak that I often had to help her dress herself. Now she is regular and is growing strong and healthy."—Mrs. MARTIN HELVIG, Plover, Iowa.

Hundreds of such letters expressing gratitude for the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished are constantly being received, proving the reliability of this grand old remedy.

If you are ill do not drag along and continue to suffer day in and day out but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a woman's remedy for woman's ills.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Weak Lungs Often Lead to Serious Illness

If you have weak lungs, you are generally subject to colds or throat trouble and easily susceptible to serious lung troubles. In many cases pneumonia or other lung troubles leave the lungs in a much weakened condition. Eckman's Alternative is a medicine for the throat and lungs which has been found to be very beneficial, even when a course of climate and other treatments failed to bring relief. Read this case:—
"225 S. Atlantic Ave., Haddonfield, N. J. Gentlemen: In the fall of 1905 I contracted a very severe cold which settled on my lungs. At last I began to raise spittle, and my physician then told me I must go to California immediately. At this time I was advised to take Eckman's Alternative. I stayed at home and commenced taking it the last week in October. I began to improve, and the first week in January, 1906, I resumed my regular occupation, having gained 25 pounds. I am now restored to health. It is now seven years since my recovery has been effected, and I cannot praise Eckman's Alternative too highly."
Eckman's Alternative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious for severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Coughs and in rebuilding the system. Contains no narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. Ask for booklet telling of recoveries and write to Eckman Laboratories, Philadelphia, Pa., for evidence. The Hollow of Her Hand

"You—you amaze me," he exclaimed.

"Does you offer of last December still stand?"

"I—I think we would better have Leslie in, Sara. This is most unexpected. I don't quite feel up to—"

"Have Leslie in by all means," she said, resuming her seat.

He hesitated a moment, opened his lips as if to speak, and then abruptly left the room.

Sara smiled.

Many minutes passed before the two Wrاندalls put in an appearance. She understood the delay. They were telephoning to certain legal advisers.

"What's this I hear, Sara?" demanded Leslie, extending his hand after a second's hesitation.

She shook hands with him, not listlessly but with the vigor born of nervousness.

"I don't know what you've heard," she said pointedly.

His slim fingers went searching for the end of his moustache.

"Why—why, about selling out to us," he stammered.

"I am willing to retire from the firm of Wrاندall & Co.," she said.

"Father says the business is as good as it was a year ago, but I don't agree with him," said the son, trying to look lugubrious.

"Then you don't care to repeat your original proposition?"

"Well, the way business has been falling off—"

"Perhaps you would prefer to sell out to me," she remarked quickly.

"Not at all!" he said quickly, with a surprised glance at his father. "We couldn't think of letting the business pass out of the Wrاندall name."

"You forget that my name is Wrاندall," she rejoined. "There would be no occasion to change the firm's name; merely its membership."

"Our original offer stands," said the senior Wrاندall stiffly. "We prefer to buy."

"And I to sell. Mr. Carroll will meet you tomorrow, gentlemen. He will represent me as usual. Our business as well as social relations are about to end, I suppose. My only regret is that I cannot further accommodate you by changing my name. Still you may live in hope that time may work even that wonder for you."

She arose. The two men regarded her in an aggrieved way for a moment.

"I have no real feeling of hostility toward you, Sara," said Leslie nervously. "In spite of all that you said the other night."

"I am afraid you don't mean that deep down in your heart, Leslie," she said, with a queer little smile.

"But I do," he protested. "Hang it all, we live in a glass house ourselves, Sara. I dare say, in a way, I was quite as unpleasant as the rest of the family. You see, we just can't help being snobs. It's in us, that's all there is to it."

Mr. Wrандall looked up from the floor, his gaze having dropped at the first outburst from his son's lips.

"We—we prefer to be friendly, Sara. If you will allow us—"

She laughed and the old gentleman stopped in the middle of his sentence.

"We can't be friends, Mr. Wrандall," she said, suddenly serious. "The pretense would be a mockery. We are all better off if we allow our paths and our interests to diverge today."

"Perhaps you are right," said he, compressing his lips.

"I believe that Vivian and I could—but no! I won't go so far as to say that either. There is something genuine about her. Strange to say, I have never disliked her."

"If you had made the slightest effort to like us, no doubt we could have—"

"My dear Mr. Wrандall," she interrupted quickly, "I credit you with the desire to be fair and just to me. You have tried to like me. You have even deceived yourself at times. I—but why these gentle recriminations? We merely prolong an unfortunate contest between antagonistic natures, with no hope of genuine peace being established. I do not regret that I am your daughter-in-law, nor do I believe that you would regret it if I had not been the daughter of Sebastian Gooch."

"Your father was as little impressed with my son as I was with his daughter," said Redmond Wrандall drily. "I am forced to confess that he was the better judge. We had the better of the bargain."

"I believe you mean it, Mr. Wrандall," she said, a note of gratitude in her voice. "Good-bye. Mr. Carroll will see you tomorrow." She glanced quickly about the room. "I shall send for—for certain articles that are no longer required in conducting the business of Wrандall & Co."

With a quaint little smile, she indicated the two photographs of herself.

"By Jove, Sara," burst out Leslie abruptly. "I wish you'd let me have that Gipsy Mab picture. I've always been doty over it, don't you know. Rippling study."

Her lip curled slightly.

"As a matter of fact," he explained conclusively, "Chal often said he'd leave it to me when he died. In a joking way, of course, but I'm sure he meant it."

"You may have it, Leslie," she said slowly. "It is doubtful if he correctly interpreted the movement of her head, as she uttered the words."

"Thanks," said he. "I'll hang it in my den, if you don't object."

"We shall expect Mr. Carroll tomorrow, Sara," said his father, with an air of finality. "Good-bye. May I ask what plans you are making for the winter?"

"They are very indefinite."

"I say, Sara, why don't you get married?" asked Leslie, surveying the Gipsy Mab photograph with undisguised admiration as he held it at arm's length. "Rippling! This to the picture."

She paused near the door to stare at him for a moment, unutterable scorn in her eyes.

"I've had a notion you were pretty keen about Brandy Booth," he went on amiably.

She caught her breath. There was an instant's hesitation on her part before she replied.

"You have never been very smart at making love guesses, Leslie," she said. "It's a trick you haven't acquired."

He laughed uncomfortably. "Neat stroke, that."

Following her into the corridor outside the office, he pushed the elevator bell for her.

"I meant what I said, Sara," he remarked, somewhat doggedly. "You ought to get married. Chal didn't leave much for you to cherish. There's no reason why you should go on like this, living alone and all that sort of thing. You're young and beautiful and—"

"Oh, thank you, Leslie," she cried out sharply.

"You see, it's going to be this way: Hetty will probably marry Booth. That's on dit, I take it. You're depending on her for companionship. Well, she'll quit you cold after she's married. She will."

She interrupted him peremptorily.

"If Chal's did nothing else for me, Leslie, he at least gave me you to cherish. Once more, good-bye."

The elevator stopped for her. He strolled back to his office with a puzzled frown on his face. She certainly was inexplicable!

The angry red faded from her cheeks as she sped homeward in the automobile. Her thoughts were no longer of Leslie but of another. She sighed and closed her eyes, and her cheeks were pale.

Workmen from a picture dealer's establishment were engaged in hanging a full length portrait in the long living-room of her apartment when she reached home. She had sent to the country for Booth's picture of Hetty, and was having it hung in a conspicuous place.

Passing the open library door, Sara paused for an instant to peer within. Then she went on down the hall to her own sitting-room. The canary was winging glibly in his cage by the window-side.

She threw aside her furs, and, without removing her hat, passed into the bed-chamber at the left of the cozy little boudoir. This was Hetty's room. Her own was directly opposite. On the girl's dressing-table, leaning against the broad, low mirror, stood the unframed photograph of a man. With a furtive glance over her shoulder, Sara crossed to the table and took up the picture in her gloved hand. For a long time she stood there gazing into the frank, good-looking face of Brandon Booth. She breathed faster; her hand shook; her eyes were strained as if by an inward suggestion of pain.

She shook her head slowly, as if in final renunciation of a secret hope or the banishment of an unwelcome desire, and resolutely replaced the photograph. Her lips were almost white as she turned away and re-entered the room beyond.

"He belongs to her," she said, unconsciously speaking aloud; "and he is like all men. She must not be unhappy."

Presently she entered the library. She had exchanged her tailor-suit for a dainty house-gown. Hetty was still seated in the big lounging chair, before the snapping fire, apparently not having moved since she looked in on passing a quarter of an hour before. One of the girl's legs was curled up under her, the other swung loose; an elbow rested on the arm of the chair, and her cheek was in her hand.

Coming softly up from behind, Sara leaned over the back of the chair and put her hands under her friend's chin, tenderly, lovingly. Hetty started and shivered.

"Oh, Sara, how cold your hands are!"

She grasped them in her own and fondly stroked them, as if to restore warmth to the long, slim fingers which gave the lie to Mrs. Coburn's declarations.

"I've been thinking all morning of what you and Brandon proposed to me last night," said Sara, looking straight over the girl's head, the dark, languorous, mysterious glow filling her eyes. "It is good of you both to want me, but—"

"Now don't say 'but,' Sara," cried Hetty. "We mean it, and you must let us have our way."

"It would be splendid to be near you all the time, dear; it would be wonderful to live with you as you so generously propose; but I cannot do it. I must decline."

"And may I ask why you decline to live with me?" demanded Hetty resentfully.

"Because I love you so dearly," said Sara.

Typewriter Hint

Those who use the typewriter often should keep at hand a small bottle of alcohol and a piece of absorbent cotton. There is nothing more efficacious for removing the telltale marks of the typewriter ribbon than cotton moistened with alcohol.

Light From Mushrooms

Mushrooms growing on decayed wood often have a degree of brilliancy that, when they are placed on a newspaper, will enable one to read the words in their vicinity with no other light. One species of mushroom in Australia, 16 inches in diameter, was of such brilliancy that, seen from a distance, its light frightened the natives.

A Pure Drink

IN all the history of brewing since the days of Tacitus, the Roman historian, who first mentions beer as an accomplishment of the German women, down to the present date, beer has always been considered one of the most healthful drinks on account of its purity. Made from malted grain and hops and sterilized water, its cost is so reasonable that there is no incentive for adulteration or substitution.

Dr. F. E. Engelhart, analyst for the New York State Board of Health, examined 476 samples of malt liquors and makes this report:

"No substitution for hops has been found and no harmful ingredients have been detected. Not one of the samples of malt liquors officially analyzed contain either hop substitutes or any other deleterious substances, the use of which could from any rational point of view be regarded as an adulteration."

Dr. H. E. Barnard, Food and Drug Commissioner of Indiana, says: "The best place to learn sanitary food production is the brewery."

Beer is about the only article of commerce that cannot be tampered with by the trade. If a bottle is opened it is soon flat and worthless. If a keg is touched, the contents are lost. The very nature of beer makes this impossible.

Beer cannot be "doctored."

Rash Washed Away By D.D.D.

Skin Kept Healthy With D. D. D. Soap

We want all skin sufferers who have suffered for many years the torture of disease and who have sought medical aid in vain to read this.

We, as old established druggists of this community, wish to recommend to you a product that has given many relief and may mean the end of your agony. The product is a mild, simple wash—not a patent medicine concocted of various worthless drugs, but a scientific compound made of well-known antiseptic ingredients. It is made in the D. D. D. Laboratories of Chicago and is called the D. D. D. Prescription for Eczema.

This is a doctor's special prescription—one that has effected many wonderful cures.

Knowledge Is Power

If the average person knew and realized the power of one little want ad the page devoted to this class of work would be daily overflowed. When you think of all the homes your daily paper enters with its messages of cheer, news, wants, and the like, can you longer doubt its ability to help you in many different ways?

If you have a want, and keep it to yourself you know it or tries to satisfy it? On the contrary, if you have a want and make it known throughout the columns of your daily paper, the whole community (almost) as one man rises up and tries to help you satisfy it. A word to the wise is generally sufficient. If you have any want that is legitimate, write a little want ad concerning it, insert it in your home paper and watch the results. We know what they will be, because we have systematically tried them out. Your answers will begin to pour in! They will! Try it and see!

TALK TO LOWELL.

AN OLD REMEDY Beef, Iron and Wine is one of the good old remedies that has outlived a score of patent tonics, and is a price, a satisfactory tonic, appetizer and mild stimulant. There is nothing better for that tired, worried, listless feeling or run-down condition of the system after illness of any kind. It tones the whole system, stimulates digestion, gives you appetite, is a good iron tonic for weak, pale children or old people, far more effective than malt extracts or so-called wine of cod liver oil that depend upon their stimulants alone. Beef, Iron and Wine tones and sustains. It assists nature to recuperate, it is a food to the sick and nursing mothers.

Mr. Pfennig, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist, prepares our Beef, Iron and Wine. It's always ready-made from the very best extract of beef, wholesome, properly aged and healthy and soluble iron.

We don't sell ready-made, hand-made, factory-manufactured Beef, Iron and Wine. We believe and know that medicine should be compounded only by the experienced and scientific.

Try a bottle of our Beef, Iron and Wine as made by Mr. Pfennig, 75c a full flat. Note its wholesome taste and invigorating effect. You will be more than satisfied. Get it at the Baker Drug Co., Milwaukee and River streets.
